

Bell companies operate an "essential facility", and should have to accommodate other ISP firms that wish to purchase access from them. Any company that provides "last mile" access from central facilities to consumers is by definition a monopoly. They should be highly regulated and prohibited from leveraging their last mile into other services.